NORTHAMPTON, (Massachusetts) PRINTED AND PUBLISHED BY WILLIAM BUTLER. Vol. VII. WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 3, 1792. [NO. 118.]

PHILADELPHIA, SEPTEMBER 17. By the ship Bering, Captain TANNER, just arrived here from Oklaok, we have received the following Manifesto...

THEIR Majesties the Emperor and King of Prussia, having conferred on the command of the said armies which they have created to be admitted on the frontiers of France...

After having arbitrarily suppressed the rights and prerogatives of the German princes in Alsace and Lorraine, and oversteer all interior order and good government...

His Majesty the King of Prussia, united with his Imperial Majesty, by the ties of a strict and defensive alliance, as well as in his quality of preponderant member of the Germanic body...

That the two interests is united another equally important, and which the two sovereigns have much at heart—of causing the assembly existing in the interior of France to cease...

That the combined armies will protect all cities, burghs, villages, persons, and possessions, that shall submit to the King, and they will instantaneously contribute to the raising of order, and a good police throughout all France...

Extract of a letter from London, July 14. From my early days, the progress of nature in farming—Commonwealth in your country, has been a great object of my contemplation...

PHILADELPHIA, SEPTEMBER 17. The City of Paris and all its inhabitants without exception, are held to the King as full and entire liberty; and to assure him, as well as the Royal Family...

Their Imperial and Royal Majesties, or so fire upon them either into the field, or from any window, door, or opening of their houses...

Their Imperial and Royal Majesties, on the contrary promise to the inhabitants of the said city of Paris, that they will give them a perfect liberty...

That the combined armies will protect all cities, burghs, villages, persons, and possessions, that shall submit to the King, and they will instantaneously contribute to the raising of order...

Extract of a letter from London, July 14. From my early days, the progress of nature in farming—Commonwealth in your country, has been a great object of my contemplation...
