CITIZENS,
WAS confiderably furprized on reading in the left Spy, a ridiculous and infamous publication, under the figurator of a "Citizen", which appears to be the work of an avowed ariffectur, and an ecomy to genuine freedom and the equal right of mankind, as well as to the honor, dig nity, interest, and happiness of his countri I was surprized, because it is the on ariflocratical production that has lately appeared in that patriotic paper: And I was at fift disposed to centure the conduct of the Editor, in suffering such a seandafor the Editor, in location sector a rainer a lous performance to eclipfe the rifing fplendor of the Federal Spy.—But after a few moments cool reflection on the pefew moments cool reliction on the pe-culiar fination of the principe of periodical papers, I was convinced that it is their du-ty, as well as their interff, in order to pre-fer the impartiality of the prefu unfulfiel, to "become all things to all men," and confequently to publish for all parties. The above pentioned infignificant production would be undeferving of the leaft no-tice, were it not that it is intended as an addition to the black catalogue of afperfloors, which have been onjully heaped upon a certain celebrated character; and contains feveral abfolute falthoods, which demand a ferious refutation. Under the finn that it is the day of every patriotic citizen to defend the charafters men in office, who are unjudly afperfed and whole conduct is wilfully, mifrence fented by wicked and uncandid persons, I now refume the pea, and although my in-formation and abilities are confessedly unequal to the talk of inveltigating any pocate and important one, as the examinapeople, Lam, nevertheleis, certain that my people, Iam, nevertness, certain that my intentions are pore, and that I am not prompted by any finifier or interefled mives, but induced, mersey from a facred regard to truth and judice, and an arden love for my cobinty, and the divine could of freedom, again to folicit your unprejudent.

The writer abovementioned afferts that william Lyman, Efg. the Reprefentative of this county in Congress, has, either through weakness, or wickedness, abandoned his colleagues, and the immediate in-terest of his condituents, and attached himtereft of his community and arrived felf to the "fouthern faction"—That his conduct does not bear the least appearance conduct does not bear the least appearance of conduct does not bear the least appearance of confidency—that he has opported all attempts for negociation with GreatBritain, and every efficient measure that has been purported for the defence of the country; and that this only aim appears to be the acquirement of populating. I shall in the first place of degree that it is a horrid abuse, and a mail unexampled affront and daring inpeople, to denominate a respectable majori-ty of our political fathers, "A faction, the general tenor of whose measures have the general tenor of whole mealures have been to endermine the bafs of govern-ment, and render us once more a piet to the miferies of diffusion, lofs of credit, an-archy and confusion." This is the charac-ter, Chizena, which this writer aferibes to appellation of the frathern faction; in do-ing which he has committed a crime, for which he deferves exemplary punishment, and the detellation and exectation of every honest man, and good citizen. For that man must certainly be an enemy to his intry, who can thus wantonly fport wit the characters of the illustrious guardians of our rights and principles. What can be more difrespectful, what more infulting, what more deferring of furnmary punish-ment, than to sligmatize the National Af-fembly of the Columbian Republic with he difgraceful and even treasonable epithe diffractor and even treatonable epithets above recited? Or to affert that any of our legislators are the tools of a feltion, without producing positive proof of the truth of the affertion? Fellow Citizens, it truth of the attention r relies Chilzens, it is fine for you to be upon the watch. You have a real faction among you, which under the specious pretences of the love of order, and an inviolable attachment to the prefent confliction, are fecretly underminpublicas government, and preparing for you an odious stiftoeracy, or a return to your former fervile and flavish dependence your former service and asymmetreposeure on the corrept, prolligate, and tyrannical government of Great Britain. It is your duty to feach our this faction, to defeat its wicked schemes and machinations, and rounish the authors and promotters of the Golf forbid that I should be understood to Golf forbid that I should be understood to mean that any of our venerable legislators belong to this or any other faction. On the contrast it composed of those wickrie contrary it is composed of those wick-rd and desperate persons, who have already ecommenced an indirect attack upon re-publication, by calumniating those worthy nore eafily accomplish their diabolical defigns. That fuch a faction as I have not described, really exists, is an undoubted fact. But I trust, that the discernment, frmnels, and patriotifin of the citizens of the United States, will effectually discon-cert its councils, defeat its plans, and en-fure the invaluable bleffings of liberty and equality to themselves and the remotest pof-

I thall now proceed to the particular inunuations against Mr. Lyman, who in the opinion of this immaculate writer, has for feired the confidence of his constituents. by parfising a line of conduct repugnant to the featiments of nine tenths of them, while it is at the fame time binted, that he cooducts in fuch a manner as he is morel. conducts in such a manner as up is mora-ly certain, will bring upon him their cen-fure and difapprobation, he is purfuing a bitherto untravelled road to popularity.— But the Citizen further infingates, that he intended to make assends for his unwurthy conduct, by feeeding from his favorite parry, on the question of a lead tax. Their appears to be an uncommon inconsistency, and a consuled jargon of words and ideas a this part of our author's performance. in this part of our author's performance, which I believe his fabling genins it hardly capable of rendering intelligible. The affection that Mr. Lymna was opposed to those efficient and energetic meatures that have been proposed and adopted for the protection of our commerce, is wholly un-founded, as it is well known that he sored favor of the bill for establishing a naval rmament. Neither is it true that he has been opposed to negociation, although I have too high an opinion of him to suppose that he is in savor of negociating to no purpose, while the British are alting.—Whether his conduct has been confificat, or not, is submitted to the candid judgment of his conflituents. I now call upon the Citizen to diference this affertion—That Great Bri-tain has been in a flate of actual warfare with the United States for Several months And although I have the most unbounded and although 1 have the most unbounded veneration for the charaftes of our illustri-ous Prefident, and fincerely approve the wife and temperate measures he has raken for the prefervation of peace and tranqui-lity, I am, notwithstanding, decidedly of contains that a hadronic of opinion, that a declaration of war on the art of the United States against Great Britain, would long fince have been juffified on the most rigid political and moral prin-Fellow Citivens For the serie feelouffe called upon, candidly and impartially to and if it appears to you, that he has diffion-ored the elevated flation in which your for frages placed him, you will undoubtedly be juilified in " withdrawing from him your as I prefume it will, that he has conducted like a flannch, independent republican, and nice it anneh, independent republican, and firm patrior—that he has not attached him-felf to any factious party, but affed calmly dispationately, and wifely, it is your indipendible duty to reward his merit, and fill further to honor him with that configuration in the configuration of the configuration of the configuration.

dence, which he has thewn himfelf to derving of.
I shall conclude with calling your atten tion, for a moment, to the other respecta-ble characters whom the Citizen has calumniated. The venerable names of Maddi-fon, Giles, Clark, &c. flands confpicuous on the lift, Illustrious characters! It is your peculiar honor to be reproached with being the leaders of a party in the facted needs the leaders of a party in the needs of a cause of liberty and republicanism. It is mentioned to your eternal glory, that you have proved yourselves worthy of the relpect and grateful people.

You are entirted to the applicate of every real patriot and virtuous citizen. And yo glorious exertions, in behalf of your i giorious exertions, in behalf of your in-jured country, are exceeded only by the podlike actions of a Militantes, a Baurus, a Hancock, and a Washington.

Capt. Blife, will parade at the fame time and place with Colonel Thomas Dwight's As the Division I have the hopper to command, have been repeatedly call'd upon, to complete themselves with Arms, Ammunition, and every military equipment, as pointed out by law; and as the General is well knowing to the exercions the offi-cers and foldiers have made to equip themfelves in times paff. he will mor admit of a doubt, but that he fall find every man in his Division completely e-quirped when he reviews them, when he reflects on the very critical fituation of the country, and the wifes of the people he commands, to maintain peace, and avoid the horrors of war, he is peace, and avoid the horrors of war, he is fully of opinion, that to maintain the one, and avoid the other, is to be prepared for war, in every respect—If any fluods be for loft to the duty they owe themselves, and fellow-citizens, as to neglect to equip them, felves as the law directs, they most not are ect to escape the inspection with impunity.

As the General feels exceedingly anxious for the happinels and lafety of the country, he must take the liberty to request the Selectmen of the feveral towns in As the General feels exceedingly quest the Selectmen of the feveral towns in this Divition, to fee that they are formilled with their full quantity of summinition, agreeable to law, as they may unexpected-ly be called upon for its defence. The Brigadier Generals will canle all vacancies in their respective Brigades, to be filled according to law, without delay. The officers commanding battalions of ca-valry and artillery, will fee that all vacancies are filled in their respective commands, according to law, as food as possible.

The Major General flatters himfelf, that no non-commissioned officer or foldier, will prefume to fire a gon or piftol, on the day of inspection, on any presence whatever, unless under the direction of a commissioned officer.
