

POETRY.

From the NEW-YORK DIARY.

FORTIFICATION SONG.

To cheer up, these classes of Citizens, who, using their labor at the spade and barrow, might tire their patriotism by working at the several forts; a New-York bard has prefaced them with the following Song.

Time—Hearts of Oak."

Y Friends of your country, the summons attend
Be this your employment, your joy and your pride;
Your Heav'n-granted rights to prefer and defend,
And the spirits of freedom, your labours shall guide.

Chorus.
Our country demands us—her call we obey,
Let's work and be merry,
We'll never be weary,
While freedom and glory our labours repay.

Let vassals by despot be kidnap'd & pres'd:
Let scourges compel them to labor and grieve!

The spirit that warms an American breast,
Impels to the duty he claims as his right.

Our country demands, &c.

Slaves and Tyrants shall view with dismay and fury.

The walls of defiance by Citizens built;
There high shall the Standard of Liberty rise,

Undisgrac'd by compulsion, untaunted by guilt;

Our country demands, &c.

Thence Freedom her thundering uncaring shall rise:

Thence her red glowing bullets shall blare,
blaze in their flight;

And our foes see their black floating bells
in a flame,

While none shall escape to run off by the light;

Our country demands, &c.

No quarrel we seek, blood and treasure to spend;

But this we resolve—is our boast and our pride;

Our wrongs to avenge, and our rights to defend;

With the SPIRIT OF FREEDOM our actions to guide.

Our country demands us—her call we obey,
Let's work and be merry,

We'll never be weary,

While freedom and glory our labours repay.

ANECDOTES of ANACHARSIS CLOOTS.

THIS extraordinary character lately gallotined at Paris, distinguished himself from the earliest period of the revolution:—A Prussian by birth, and celebrated for his philosophical researches, he was invited into France, where it does not appear that he uttered himself into public notice, till the appearance of some periodical works—more admired for breathing the true spirit of liberty, than from the singularity of his title, which was little relished.

After being collected a considerable sum of money in a few weeks, of consequence he will offer his GOODS for sale, at a very low price for pay in hand.

CASH GIVEN FOR POT-ASH.

Northampton, June 17, 1794.

ON Wednesday night of the 28th ult., was sold for the subscriber, 1 set of flower curtains, wove'd with deep blue, pale blue, and white—1 Check Linen Sheet—blue Cotton do—3 Sheets, 2 without any mark, I marked E, B, 1 pair of blue and white Cotton Stockings—a number of other articles. Should any person have an opportunity to learn about these articles, and will return them, so that they may be had, or return them shall be well rewarded by Wm. WILLINGS.

Conway, June 3, 1794.

JOHN CLARK.

Northampton, June 3, 1794.

ON, or about the 1st day of May last, LEVI WARD, an indented boy, absconded from my service. All persons are cautioned, not to harbor or traffick on my account, as they would avoid the penalty of the law.

JOSIAH DICKINSON.

Chesterfield, June 2, 1794.

THE Subscriber have been appointed Executrix of the late Will and Testament of HURAM MARSHAL, late of Northampton, deceased, and taken upon myself the trust, and have given bonds as the law directs. All persons having any demands on the said Huram's estate are requested to exhibit the same—and those persons, who are indebted to said estate, are requested to make immediate payment.

WILLIAM POMEROY, Executor.

Northampton, June 11, 1794.

He had formerly received a flattering letter from the Prussian monarch's own hand, accompanied with a golden medal, as a reward for some work of merit; at the time when the people were making public offerings of money, plate, jewels, &c. to present the royal medal, and begged it might be immediately cast into the crucible and after having read aloud the letter he indignantly tore it, and scattered the pieces in the air, looking round with exulting triumph.

This and other proofs of patrofism, made him very popular—and soon after we see him seated as a National Representative at the same period with Thomas Paine.

The Convention anticipated much from the labors of those two celebrated characters—but intrigue and violence of party succeeded, we hear no mention made of either, till the exception of Thomas Paine, and the conspiracy for which Anacharsis Cloots, was condemned, and executed.

ANECDOTE.

A BEGGER in England was picking a few of his old acquaintances out of his clothes, when a nobleman passing by, accosted him: "You dirty rascal, what are you about?" "Nothing sir," replied the beggar, "but goldsting a few aristocrats;" "Aristocrats you seditionists found, how dare you call such vermin aristocrats?" "I cannot find any better name for them, may it please your honor, they always live on the poor."

TAPPAN & FOWLE,

WOULD inform their customers, that they have just opened a beautiful assortment of English Goods, which will sell for ready pay, as low as they can be purchased in the country.

June 12, 1794.

LEVI SHEPARD,

Has just received, a large and valuable supply of

GOODS,

which added to those he had on hand before, will comprehend almost every article of consumption that is made use of in this part of the country.

He has a number of Hogheads of Jamaica Spices, St. Croix, and New-Rum, by the Hogshead or less quantity—Also Rum and Philadelphia IRON, German and blistered STEEL, PAINTER'S COLOURS, and LINSEED OIL, SPIRITS of TURPENTINE, VARNISH, ROSIN & PITCH, CLOTHIER'S DYE-STUFFS such as LOGWOOD, REDWOOD, the best kind of CAMWOOD, COPPERAS, ALLUM, INDIGO, BLUE VITRIOL, OIL of VITRIOL, PRESS PAPER, JACK-CARDS, FUSTICE and NICA-RAGUA.

Our country demands, &c.

No quarrel we seek, blood and treasure to spend;

But this we resolve—is our boast and our pride;

Our wrongs to avenge, and our rights to defend;

With the SPIRIT OF FREEDOM our actions to guide.

Our country demands us—her call we obey,

Let's work and be merry,

We'll never be weary,

While freedom and glory our labours repay.

DRUGS & MEDICINES

—AS USUAL—

Madeira, Sherry, and Malaga Wine, Gia, Raifas by the Caffe, Pepper, Alpice, Cinnamon, Nutmegs, Cloves, Mace, Ginger, best kind of Hyson, Souchong and Bancha Tea, Coffee, Chocolate, Loaf, Sugar, Molasses, Rice by the cut. Salt by the Hogshead or Bushel, Codfish by the quintal, various kinds of Nails and Glits, Iron, Hollow Ware, Cart Boxes, &c.

Said SHEPARD, is under some necessity to collect a considerable sum of money in a few weeks, of consequence he will offer his GOODS for sale, at a very low price for pay in hand.

CASH GIVEN FOR POT-ASH.

Northampton, June 17, 1794.

ON Wednesday night of the 28th ult., was sold for the subscriber, 1 set of flower curtains, wove'd with deep blue, pale blue, and white—1 Check Linen Sheet—blue Cotton do—3 Sheets, 2 without any mark, I marked E, B, 1 pair of blue and white Cotton Stockings—a number of other articles. Should any person have an opportunity to learn about these articles, and will return them, so that they may be had, or return them shall be well rewarded by Wm. WILLINGS.

Conway, June 3, 1794.

JOHN CLARK.

Northampton, June 3, 1794.

ON, or about the 1st day of May last, LEVI WARD, an indented boy, absconded from my service. All persons are cautioned, not to harbor or traffick on my account, as they would avoid the penalty of the law.

JOSIAH DICKINSON.

Chesterfield, June 2, 1794.

THE Subscriber have been appointed Executrix of the late Will and Testament of HURAM MARSHAL, late of Northampton, deceased, and taken upon myself the trust, and have given bonds as the law directs. All persons having any demands on the said Huram's estate are requested to exhibit the same—and those persons, who are indebted to said estate, are requested to make immediate payment.

WILLIAM POMEROY, Executor.

Northampton, June 11, 1794.

He had formerly received a flattering letter from the Prussian monarch's own hand, accompanied with a golden medal, as a reward for some work of merit; at the time when the people were making public offerings of money, plate, jewels, &c. to present the royal medal, and begged it might be immediately cast into the crucible

Fresh Goods.

Arad Brown, & Co.

HAVE this day received from Boston, an additional supply of Sundry

GOODS,

Among which are Light, Dark, & Blue Ground Chintz Furniture, Muslins, Muslinets, Satins, Modes, Bandanas and Balaclava Handkerchiefs, Gloves, Cotton and Silk Hose, Foulards, Nankin, Japes, of all sorts, Mollass and Silk Veil Shapes, Shawls, Mocca, Irish Linen, Pocket Handkerchiefs, &c.

Which together with their other GOODS make a complete assortment, which will be sold at so low advance as at any store in the county. Also, in a few days will receive most kinds of West-India Goods.

Easthampton, June 10, 1794.

New Goods,

OF the late importation, via New-York, such as Dark and Light Chintz, Jacksons and Book Medals, Cravats, elegant Chintz Furniture, Muslin and Linen Handkerchiefs, Black Silk, do Modes, Sarconets, Hollands, Linens and Guanzas, Foulards, Strip'd Nankin, Calimures, &c. &c. which make up a good assortment of

SPRING GOODS.

Also Wool Cards, excellent Indigo, and Bades Tea, the latter recommended itself—well dressed Flax, and a few Tiers of Flax-Seed, Wool and Fur Hats, to be sold cheap for good pay. Those who contracted to pay half and Winter, and those who have given their note for cash, might absolutely make pay forthwith, as they would save cost and obtain further supply of Goods, and oblige their humble servant.

Check Linen, and Tow Cloth will be taken for Goods, and the highest price given for Books, in CASH and GOODS.

SELAH NORTON.

Ashfield, May 26, 1794.

PEASE, HUNT, and Co.

Northampton, May 15, 1794.

Simeon Butler,

RESPECTFULLY informs the public, that he continues the business of

BOOK-BINDING, as usual, neatly and properly, the Heart-Horse, Northampton, where Divers and Report Books, Merchant Accounts Books, need to any pattern, may be had on the shortest notice. Old Books rebound.

He has for Sale,

Baird's Sermons, Price's Sermons,

Cullen's Practice of Physic,

Hamilton's Midwifery,

Buchanan's Family Physician,

Dissipatory, Cheshire's Anatomy,

Elliot's Pocket Book, Brown's Elements, Hamilton's Treatise, Pike's Arithmetic, Young Man's Companion,

School Master's Assistant,

Hervey's Medicines,

Senecca's Morals, Maxims, Complete Letter Writer,

Redeemed Captives, Pleasing Instructor, Pocket Farmer, Frier Bacon,

Injured Innocence, Pope's Epistles, Conquest of Mexico, Lucky Idiot,

Life of Swift, Bibles & Testaments, Hieroglyphick Pictures,

Palm Books pr. doz., Websters 1/2 id and 1/2 d.

Ferry's do, pr. doz. or single.

Primer's, Excellent Bellads,

ENGLISH PAPER,

Royal, Medium, Thick paper, Fols. Cols.

Letter Paper, Gilt, Marble, Bonnet, Curridge, and Wrapping do.

Any of the above articles give for Rec'd. or Taased Sheep Skins, Conduit Attendance given and every favor gratefully acknowledged.

N. B. An Apparatus to the above is wanted.

Norhampton, June 18, 1794.

THE PRINTER

hereof, hereby calls on all persons indebted to him for the Hampshire Gazette, Advertisements, &c. to make immediate payment—he will inform his Customers that a annual settlement is EXPECTED.—Those indebted for two years or more, may consider this as the last notice that will be given them in this way.

JOB CLARK.

Notehampton, June 3, 1794.

ON, or about the 1st day of May last, LEVI WARD, an indented boy, absconded from my service. All persons are cautioned, not to harbor or traffick on my account, as they would avoid the penalty of the law.

JOSIAH DICKINSON.

Chesterfield, June 2, 1794.

THE Subscriber have been appointed Executrix of the late Will and Testament of HURAM MARSHAL, late of Northampton, deceased, and taken upon myself the trust, and have given bonds as the law directs. All persons having any demands on the said Huram's estate are requested to exhibit the same—and those persons, who are indebted to said estate, are requested to make immediate payment.

WILLIAM POMEROY, Executor.

Northampton, June 11, 1794.

He had formerly received a flattering letter from the Prussian monarch's own hand, as a reward for some work of merit; at the time when the people were making public offerings of money, plate, jewels, &c. to present the royal medal, and begged it might be immediately cast into the crucible and was scattered in the air, looking round with exulting triumph.

This and other proofs of patrofism,

made him very popular—and soon after we see him seated as a National Representative at the same period with Thomas Paine.

The Convention anticipated much from the labors of those two celebrated characters—but intrigue and violence of party succeeded, we hear no mention made of either, till the exception of Thomas Paine, and the conspiracy for which Anacharsis Cloots, was condemned, and executed.

Time—Hearts of Oak."

Y Friends of your country, the summons attend

Be this your employment, your joy and your pride;

Your Heav'n-granted rights to prefer and defend,

And the spirits of freedom, your labours shall guide.

Chorus.

Our country demands us—her call we obey

Let's work and be merry,

We'll never be weary,

While freedom and glory our labours repay.

AN EODOTE.

A BEGGER in England was picking

a few of his old acquaintances out of his clothes, when a nobleman passing by, accosted him: "You dirty rascal, what are you about?" "Nothing sir," replied the beggar, "but goldsting a few aristocrats;" "Aristocrats you seditionists found, how dare you call such vermin aristocrats?" "I cannot find any better name for them, may it please your honor, they always live on the poor."

AN EODOTE.

A BEGGER in England was picking

a few of his old acquaintances out of his clothes, when a nobleman passing by, accosted him: "You dirty rascal, what are you about?" "Nothing sir," replied the beggar, "but goldsting a few aristocrats;" "Aristocrats you seditionists found, how dare you call such vermin aristocrats?" "I cannot find any better name for them, may it please your honor, they always live on the poor."

AN EODOTE.

A BEGGER in England was picking

a few of his old acquaintances out of his clothes, when a nobleman passing by, accosted him: "You dirty rascal, what are you about?" "Nothing sir," replied the beggar, "but goldsting a few aristocrats;" "Aristocrats you seditionists found, how dare you call such vermin aristocrats?" "I cannot find any better name for them, may it please your honor, they always live on the poor."

AN EODOTE.

A BEGGER in England was picking

a few of his old acquaintances out of his clothes, when a nobleman passing by, accosted him: "You dirty rascal, what are you about?" "Nothing sir," replied the beggar, "but goldsting a few aristocrats;" "Aristocrats you seditionists found, how dare you call such vermin aristocrats?" "I cannot find any better name for them, may it please your honor, they always live on the poor."

AN EODOTE.

A BEGGER in England was picking

a few of his old acquaintances out of his clothes, when a nobleman passing by, accosted him: "You dirty rascal, what are you about?" "Nothing sir," replied the beggar, "but goldsting a few aristocrats;" "Aristocrats you seditionists found, how dare you call such vermin aristocrats?" "I cannot find any better name for them, may it please your honor, they always live on the poor."

AN EODOTE.

A BEGGER in England was picking

a few of his old acquaintances out of his clothes, when a nobleman passing by, accosted him: "You dirty rascal, what are you about?" "Nothing sir," replied the beggar, "but goldsting a few aristocrats;" "Aristocrats you seditionists found, how dare you call such vermin aristocrats?" "I cannot find any better name for them, may it please your honor, they always live on the poor."

AN EODOTE.

A BEGGER in England was picking

a few of his old acquaintances out of his clothes, when a nobleman passing by, accosted him: "You dirty rascal, what are you about?" "Nothing sir," replied the beggar, "but goldsting a few aristocrats;" "Aristocrats you seditionists found, how dare you call such vermin aristocrats?" "I cannot find any better name for them, may it please your honor, they always live on the poor."

AN EODOTE.

A BEGGER in England was picking

a few of his old acquaintances out of his clothes, when a nobleman passing by, accosted him: "You dirty rascal, what are you about?" "Nothing sir," replied the beggar, "but goldsting a few aristocrats;" "Aristocrats you seditionists found, how dare you call such vermin aristocrats?" "I cannot find any better name for them, may it please your honor, they always live on the poor."

AN EODOTE.

A BEGGER in England was picking

a few of his old acquaintances out of his clothes, when a nobleman passing by, accosted him: "You dirty rascal, what are you about?" "Nothing sir," replied the beggar, "but goldsting a few aristocrats;" "Aristocrats you seditionists found, how dare you call such vermin aristocrats?" "I cannot find any better name for them, may it please your honor, they always live on the poor."

AN EODOTE.

A BEGGER in England was picking

a few of his old acquaintances out of his clothes, when a nobleman passing by, accosted him: "You dirty rascal,