Rise Committee of Tablic Safety:—

It is in profestive that actions as well as individuals, ought, if I may thus express myleft, to affemble, to place themselves on their guard, against insurcation, and to litten as the filence of the passions to what the saise of a wildow and another way. fores of the governor, or of the commili-ioners, which were directed to peace for our felves with the favages, not to wat against any other nation, but been justly exceptionthe spice of wildom and modelly may inthe roice of wildom and mounty of or fpire. The moment when the report of or short through the universe, is the able, they would have been probably re-monfirsted against before this day; that it might be reasonably presumed, that the differstaction expressed against the people victories echoes among the bass ert, is that in which the legislature of the Freach Republic should watch with a new folicitude user themselves and their country, and fix the principles upon which the stability and happiness of the Republic cupht to rest.—
We this say come to furmit to your meditation thas protonal truths which nearly forcests. the bassings of madded and of Vernont was removed, after an acqui-cleance of 10 months, without a compleme, face we could communicate from hence nothing on that head which was not better known to those who were on the spot; that the declaration in my letter of the 2d inconcern the happiness of menkind, and flant, was not that my predeceffor's letter of the 5th June, 1793, was fatisfactory to you, but only that it was conceived of itself to be fatisfactory; that there is a clear 101.41th by the state of to propose to you the measures which na-turally flow from them.
The moral world much more than the diffinction between an express permiffior physical, appears to be filled with contrafts, and enigmas. Nature informs us, that man was intended for liberty, and the exdistinction occurred an express permittion to fellprizze, and the not prohibiting fach fales, when the writers on the law of nations were divided on the right for oprohibit; that we most wort for further facts hefore the influencine concerning the embargo is again difficulted; but that any noman was intended for liberty, and the ex-perience of ages diffeovers him to us as a flare; his rights are written in his heart, and his humilation is hiltory; Maskind refrest the virtue of Cato, and bend to the yoke of Carfer; poficrity honors the viruse of Brutos, and only permits its existence in accient biflory. The ages and the earth are the portion of vice and tyranny:

Liberry and virue have fearerly reflect a lawful violation of an embarga, or the coercive means for preventing a fleet of 159 veffels, including thips of war and mer-chandize, from departing from Hampton fingle inflant in any point of the globe. --Spaces refembless vivid meteor in an eter Roads, which is not many miles diffant from the tra, it not even an improve per-million; that the fate of the fraell februa-er Berry, is no other than the fate of the French faces La Camille; that as you im-

Our fublime neighbours bravely enter-rain the world with the health of their king, his amofements and his travels; and abfo-lately with to inform pofferity at what hour he dired, at what moment he returned from the chafe, what was the happy spot which at each hour of the day had the hours of being trod by his august seet, what were of being road by his angual feet, what were the names of the privileged flave who appeared in his prefence, at his lever, or at the moment of his retining. We will inform them of the names and virtues of those herees who have died flighting for liberty; we will inform them in, what had the last facilities of tyraste have bit the dult; we will inform them his what had the last facilities of tyraste have bit the dult; we will inform them what hour canted the description of the procedule. ceale of the oppressors of the world.

Yes, this delightful country we inhabit, which nature appears to carefu with prede-liction, was defined to become the domain of liberty and happingis; this fentilde and atmated nation, were traly intended for glory and virtue. O, my Country! Had deliny made me the inhabitant of a foreign and diffant land. I fhould have addrefted continual prayers to heaven for thy prof-perity. I should have shed the tears of comministration at the recital of the combata and thy virues; my attentive fool would have followed with an anxious ardor; every motion of thy glorious Revolution; I ry motion of thy glorious Revolution; I

-I should have envied that of thy reprefentatives. I am a Frenchman, I an of thy Representatives. O'l sublime nahappy is the citizen who is born in the midd of thee! happier be who can die for thy welfare.)
