marie here, ministers fent to Ireland a Lord Lieutenant, popular for many rea-fors, but chiefly because his party was pledged to the reformation of shofes -He was idolized to that extent, that to gratify him they concor in the war. In to was his majedys intention, in order to unite all descriptions of men he meant to give emancipation to the catholics; to give emancipation to the catholics;— the confequence was, that happy at the profpect of reformation, great implies were voted, exceeding, in an enormous degree, any thing that could, or ought to be expected from them. High in expec-tation, and generate or early, in the gen-eral character of that mation, they worted them with cheeful conductive, then did during an day the early may have fire and minifers dath the cup from their lips, and in do to they querielled with a noblemm, whose personal charefeer alone gave respect to, and saved from, universal copyrabrium and contempt, the late condition. In what did this lignify, he afted, if the donger minifiers dafh the cup from their lips, and and injury were produced, whether it was by the right hon, gentleman [Mr. Pitt] or Lord Firz-allian? The haufe, it is refused to fuhmit an enquiry, might be refundable for the dissipation of the fluttile empire. He knew Lord Fitz william well, and would aloud pledge him of that in that as in all things, he afted not only irreproachably, but nobly, at lead conformally, to a nonzy, and nonzy, and the conformally, to a reasonate that was nothing; fame of the minifers were in full, and the propie ought re know which of them.
