

not been any where in this part any creation from the earth. From its jagged and irregular form, it cannot have come from any building; and as the day was not tempestuous, it does not seem probable that it can have been forced from any rock, the nearest of which are of Flamborough head; a distance of 12 miles.

The particulars of this event are now before the public. I have taken every due care to ascertain the accounts given by the different parties, who all agree upon the subject; and from what I have seen, I have no doubt of the veracity of their relation. To secure a transcript of the page preceding of a certain Philosopher, adds,

"That strange to tell, he practised what he professed."

I have the honor to be,
Sir,
EDWARD TOPHAM.

NOTWITHSTANDING my absolute conviction, that a Paster ought to be an example to the flock, I have no doubt, that I sometimes vary from my own doctrines, and negligently keep my own vineyard. I warranty hope that my readers will gather grapes from my berries and, when they perse my exhortation against drowning, that they will not inquire how long I court the morning pillow.
