

vestigation in the Courts of Justice? And let us be cautious to indulge the supposition, that morality can be maintained without religion. Whatever may be conceded to the temper of the times, it is not to be expected that national and personal experience both forbid us to expect that national morality can prevail in exclusion of religious principle.

This habitually true, that virtue or morality is a necessary consequence of the love of our country. It is not to be expected that national and personal experience both forbid us to expect that national morality can prevail in exclusion of religious principle.

The great rule of conduct for us, in regard to foreign nations, is in extending our commercial relations, to have with all nations the most amicable and confidential connections. It is not to be expected that national and personal experience both forbid us to expect that national morality can prevail in exclusion of religious principle.

Our detached and distant situation invites and enables us to profess a different doctrine. It is not to be expected that national and personal experience both forbid us to expect that national morality can prevail in exclusion of religious principle.

Our detached and distant situation invites and enables us to profess a different doctrine. It is not to be expected that national and personal experience both forbid us to expect that national morality can prevail in exclusion of religious principle.

Our detached and distant situation invites and enables us to profess a different doctrine. It is not to be expected that national and personal experience both forbid us to expect that national morality can prevail in exclusion of religious principle.

Our detached and distant situation invites and enables us to profess a different doctrine. It is not to be expected that national and personal experience both forbid us to expect that national morality can prevail in exclusion of religious principle.

Our detached and distant situation invites and enables us to profess a different doctrine. It is not to be expected that national and personal experience both forbid us to expect that national morality can prevail in exclusion of religious principle.

Our detached and distant situation invites and enables us to profess a different doctrine. It is not to be expected that national and personal experience both forbid us to expect that national morality can prevail in exclusion of religious principle.

Our detached and distant situation invites and enables us to profess a different doctrine. It is not to be expected that national and personal experience both forbid us to expect that national morality can prevail in exclusion of religious principle.

Our detached and distant situation invites and enables us to profess a different doctrine. It is not to be expected that national and personal experience both forbid us to expect that national morality can prevail in exclusion of religious principle.

Our detached and distant situation invites and enables us to profess a different doctrine. It is not to be expected that national and personal experience both forbid us to expect that national morality can prevail in exclusion of religious principle.

Our detached and distant situation invites and enables us to profess a different doctrine. It is not to be expected that national and personal experience both forbid us to expect that national morality can prevail in exclusion of religious principle.

I am nevertheless too sensible of my defects not to think it probable that I may have committed many errors. I am nevertheless too sensible of my defects not to think it probable that I may have committed many errors.

I am nevertheless too sensible of my defects not to think it probable that I may have committed many errors. I am nevertheless too sensible of my defects not to think it probable that I may have committed many errors.

I am nevertheless too sensible of my defects not to think it probable that I may have committed many errors. I am nevertheless too sensible of my defects not to think it probable that I may have committed many errors.

I am nevertheless too sensible of my defects not to think it probable that I may have committed many errors. I am nevertheless too sensible of my defects not to think it probable that I may have committed many errors.

I am nevertheless too sensible of my defects not to think it probable that I may have committed many errors. I am nevertheless too sensible of my defects not to think it probable that I may have committed many errors.

I am nevertheless too sensible of my defects not to think it probable that I may have committed many errors. I am nevertheless too sensible of my defects not to think it probable that I may have committed many errors.

I am nevertheless too sensible of my defects not to think it probable that I may have committed many errors. I am nevertheless too sensible of my defects not to think it probable that I may have committed many errors.

I am nevertheless too sensible of my defects not to think it probable that I may have committed many errors. I am nevertheless too sensible of my defects not to think it probable that I may have committed many errors.

I am nevertheless too sensible of my defects not to think it probable that I may have committed many errors. I am nevertheless too sensible of my defects not to think it probable that I may have committed many errors.

I am nevertheless too sensible of my defects not to think it probable that I may have committed many errors. I am nevertheless too sensible of my defects not to think it probable that I may have committed many errors.

I am nevertheless too sensible of my defects not to think it probable that I may have committed many errors. I am nevertheless too sensible of my defects not to think it probable that I may have committed many errors.

I am nevertheless too sensible of my defects not to think it probable that I may have committed many errors. I am nevertheless too sensible of my defects not to think it probable that I may have committed many errors.

During the accident happened. Those that were not injured lay on a bedstead. This tragedy, repeated from the early part of the afternoon, with little intermissions until eleven or twelve o'clock.

BOSTON, Sept. 27. SPAIN AND ENGLAND. Extract of a letter from Lisbon, dated Aug. 16, to a respectable gentleman in Charleston.

NEW-YORK, September 27. Extract of a letter from an American gentleman in Lisbon to his brother in this city, dated the 11th of Aug., brought by the Navy, arrived on Saturday night.

LATEST FROM THE ARMY OF THE SARDINIA AND PIEDMONT. With the capture of Frankfurt, 700 families from the Rhine, Meuse and Moselle, fled from France. They were taken away by the army of the Rhine.

LATEST FROM THE ARMY OF THE RHINE AND MOSELLE. With the capture of Frankfurt, 700 families from the Rhine, Meuse and Moselle, fled from France. They were taken away by the army of the Rhine.

PROPHETCY. The following passage in the Ecclesiastes of Roof, written upwards of 3000 years ago, is very remarkable.

KINGSFORD, September 15. General Spenborough, erected by your order, in your name, at Kingsford, in the county of Down, Ireland.

QUEBEC, Sept. 8. On Tuesday last, about four o'clock in the afternoon, a dreadful fire broke out, in a stable belonging to the Honorable Thomas Dixon, in St. Louis Street, which formed part of the barracks of the British troops.

TRENTON, (N. J.) Sept. 20. On the 13th inst., there was a violent storm, during which a high wind, from the north-west, raised a great quantity of water, which inundated the city.

NEW-YORK, Sept. 27. On the 13th inst., there was a violent storm, during which a high wind, from the north-west, raised a great quantity of water, which inundated the city.

NEW-YORK, Sept. 27. On the 13th inst., there was a violent storm, during which a high wind, from the north-west, raised a great quantity of water, which inundated the city.

NEW-YORK, Sept. 27. On the 13th inst., there was a violent storm, during which a high wind, from the north-west, raised a great quantity of water, which inundated the city.

On entering the chamber, he saw several women occupied in washing the body, and preparing it for the interment. He saw a young girl, who had been the first to enter the room, and who had been the first to enter the room.

BADIAN ARMY. This army, which was under the command of General Badian, was defeated by the French army on the 27th of August.

MR. WHITEBREAD WILL. This gentleman, who has been distinguished by his talents and his industry, has been appointed to the office of Secretary of the Board of Trade.

MR. WHITEBREAD WILL. This gentleman, who has been distinguished by his talents and his industry, has been appointed to the office of Secretary of the Board of Trade.

MR. WHITEBREAD WILL. This gentleman, who has been distinguished by his talents and his industry, has been appointed to the office of Secretary of the Board of Trade.

MR. WHITEBREAD WILL. This gentleman, who has been distinguished by his talents and his industry, has been appointed to the office of Secretary of the Board of Trade.

MR. WHITEBREAD WILL. This gentleman, who has been distinguished by his talents and his industry, has been appointed to the office of Secretary of the Board of Trade.

MR. WHITEBREAD WILL. This gentleman, who has been distinguished by his talents and his industry, has been appointed to the office of Secretary of the Board of Trade.

MR. WHITEBREAD WILL. This gentleman, who has been distinguished by his talents and his industry, has been appointed to the office of Secretary of the Board of Trade.

MR. WHITEBREAD WILL. This gentleman, who has been distinguished by his talents and his industry, has been appointed to the office of Secretary of the Board of Trade.

MR. WHITEBREAD WILL. This gentleman, who has been distinguished by his talents and his industry, has been appointed to the office of Secretary of the Board of Trade.

MR. WHITEBREAD WILL. This gentleman, who has been distinguished by his talents and his industry, has been appointed to the office of Secretary of the Board of Trade.