9. Historical significance (include explanation of themes checked above)

Crescent St. was opened in 1886 along the middle slopes of Round Hill. The street almost completely encircles the hill and provides fine vistas to the north and east. This is one of three virtually identical houses built on the western side of the hill adjacent to each other. They all appear on the 1895 atlas, with this one being owned by Arthur Clark, a letter carrier.

The house is 2 and 1/2 stories in height with gable end to the street and a 2 and 1/2 story gabled projection on the northern side. Fish-scale shingles are used in the front gable, and a one-story porch covers the two-bay facade. The porch has a hipped roof, posts with fancy brackets and balustrade. A similar porch covers the front of the side projection. In the rear of the property is a 1 and 1/2 story barn with central wall gable.
